The History of the School

The school building was raised in 1936. Firstly, Primary School for women was organized there and then a secondary school for women. After World War II, during which German soldiers stayed there, a hospital was created. In 1948 Pedagogic Women School was opened. In 1965 Technical School was opened and in 1967 Vocational School was founded both of them functioned until 1976.

The Complex of Technical Schools was founded in 1976. It included a few types of schools: Technical School, Technical Vocational School, Secondary Vocational School and Gastronomic Vocational School. At present the whole school is still situated at Niepodległości Street 5. It consists of huge and spacious buildings, which make it possible for school to work. The school is made up of the main building with an additional wing, a gym hall, a gastronomic workshop, a boarding and a building of workshops.

Popularly called "Budowlanka" (secondary house - building school) has become a part of town's scenery. Teachers, who work at school, thanks to their authority and knowledge educate generations of students helping them to gain and develop theoretical and practical skills and abilities. Some of the teachers graduated from this school in the past and after completing their higher education returned to teach here.

Mr Eugeniusz Smedowski was the first headmaster of the Technical Complex and his deputy-head was Mr Jan Dobosz (who later became the headmaster) and Mr Stanisław Tarka. In that time Mr Tadeusz Papiernik was the manager of the school workshop.

From the very beginning the school has been one of the biggest in the region educating from 700 to 1700 students in 24-59 classes. On 14th October 1983 the school was given the name of general Kazimierz Pułaski, the hero fighting for the independence of Poland and the USA. He has become the remarkable patron of the school, the great example of moral and ethic behaviour. On this day the school also received the standard which has been used during the main school and town celebrations.

Another very important event took place in 1989. The modern gym hall was completed and put into use. The P.E. teachers waited for it for a long time.

The gym hall is on the first floor. On the ground floor there are gastronomic workshops. All inhabitants can have a delicious hot meal in the canteen.

In 1990 the computer lab was opened in the school.

In order to help students to learn foreign languages effectively a modern language classroom was organized, too.

In 2000 a new building was put into use with a beautiful huge hall ( 216 m ).

The building itself was raised in 1936. Firstly, Primary School for women was organized there. After World War II, during which German soldiers stayed there, a hospital was created and in 1945 one - class Women School was opened.

In 1950 Pedagogical Secondary School was moved from the present building of Polish Secondary School to our abode. Then, the School of Practice was created , too.

The boarding for the school was created in Jagiełło Street.

In 1965 Technical School was opened and in 1967 School of Occupation, which functioned until 1976.

The year 1976 was also very important for the school as then Complex of Technical Schools was created. It was made up of : Technical School ( TB ), School of Occupation ( ZSB ), Polish Secondary School of Occupation ( LZ ) and Gastronomic School of Occupation ( ZSG In ), which was moved here from Glinik in 1975.

In those days Complex of Technical Schools consisted of Technical School where students studied for four years, Technical School after School of Occupation - students learnt three years, four-year-long Polish Secondary School of Occupation, two-year-long School of Occupation and three-year-long Gastronomic School of Occupation. The common name "Budowlanka" was invented as a result of the fact that it was a complex of mainly technical schools.

In years 1976 - 1977 there were 24 classes of the following special subjects : TB / architecture, working building plan, ZSZ / a bricklayer, a fitter of installation, a painter, LZ / a waiter and a cook.

In 1976 an additional wing in school was opened. In this wing there are three classrooms a library with a reading room and two building workshops. The central heating was also installed. This improved the working conditions at school. The cover of the roof was changed, too. During the next years the building was modernized.

On 1st September the Higher School of Profession ( Policealne Studium Zawodowe ) and School of Many Professions ( Zasadnicza Szkoła Wielozawodowa ) were founded.

In 1978 two classrooms of gastronomic technology were given into use as well as three garages. In the same year the school received the reward of National Commission of Education ( KEN ). In 1979 the school was given the patronage over the places of national memory such as the soldier cemetery from World war I, the gallows and the place of execution of Poles in years 1939 - 1945 in nearby Stróżówka.

The students, who served their apprenticeship, worked on structures under construction and in different institutions.

The school needed a new building of workshops and a boarding when the Medical High School took over the building in Jagiełło Street. The construction was begun in 1981.

The design was prepared gratuitously by mgr inż. arch. Tadeusz Dusza. The school youth built the building with the professional help of the teachers.

Another important stage in the school history was in 1983. On 14th October that year the school received the name of general Kazimierz Pułaski, who became its patron. The school was also given the flag, present not only in school but in the town as well, and the medal for "The Service to the League Defending the Country". On 1st September 1983 Secondary Gastronomic School ( TG ) was opened. It expanded the number of classes. The new type of school as well as good work of teachers increased the amount of students who wanted to study at our school. They were both from Gorlice and the nearby area.

On 14th December 1984, after almost three months of work, a new building was opened. In the basement there were workshops and on two above floors boarding.

56 female students could live there.

In 1984 the school started to cooperate with the "Komuna Paryska" mine in Jaworzno and Glass works in Szczakowa. They organized in the school premises summer and winter camps for children. Thanks to it the school was able to save money to build the gym hall, which was necessary. The social committee of enlargement of the school was established, too. It included the headmasters of different schools and presidents of different institutions, who promised to help to build the gym hall. As a result, on 20th May 1985 the works began. Inside there was to be the gym hall, gastronomic workshops and a new spacious canteen. The technical documentation was prepared by mgr inż. arch. Tadeusz Dusza with a group of people from The Design of City (

Miastoprojektu ) in Rzeszów. Building works were carried out by Przedsiębiorstwo Budownictwa Komunalnego in Gorlice.

Another very important event took place in 1989. The modern gym hall was completed and put into use. The P.E. teachers waited for it for a long time.
